What type of experience does LWS have to offer?

All of Lone Wolf Security employees are properly equipped with non-lethal weapons. We have over 40 years of combined law enforcement experience, top security clearance and with over 5000 hours of law enforcement training. We are specialists in scene perimeter, and event security. The vast majority of the officers are current or former law enforcement who are CPR, first aid certified and some are TACMED certified. We are licensed and insured.

What is included with the security service?

Properly trained and uniformed officers equipped with radios for communication, non-lethal weapons for protection and crowd control, metal detectors and bag search. Security for your assets and guests. The services are based on the customers' needs and requests. Bilingual officers also available.

How much do you charge?

The cost is based on the parameter, officers needed, and the amount of days and hours. A standard fee per hour is set but the fee is negotiable based on the amount of time security is needed. Holidays and overtime are set at a different rate.

What is our cancellation policy?

LWS must be notified with a minimum of 5 days prior to the event beginning. If any cancellations after 5 days a fee can be assessed. The fee is based off of the deposit collected at the time of the agreement and a 10% of the total cost of the deposit is non refundable but is included in the total cost of the event. Cancellations for long term agreements we require a minimum of 30 days notice.

How do we deal with emergencies?

LWS will start treating the emergency while another officer contacts the proper emergency first responders.

What type of training do the security guards receive?

Using real world experience from law enforcement that effects how we work with people, problem solving and secure property and persons. All LWS officers continue training to stay updated with all new innovations and updated ways to handle persons in different situations.
